

Cycling and taking the train has enabled Alex to connect more with their friends, explore new social networks in the city and build their fitness.

John & Mary love how their new approach to travel has enabled them to embrace the beauty of local nature.

Kim has enjoyed how car sharing has saved her money and created space for her to connect with friends.

Advocating for government green initiatives to be accessible and inclusive of people with disabilities, has enabled Mike to be more independent and participate in local social events.

Having a flexible work environment has made Nia and John realise they didn't need their second car so have sold it. They now enjoy new ways of getting around, especially being able to connect more with their kids and the community.

Yasmin's green credentials have attracted new customers. She's also reduced her costs, so she's got more to reinvest in the business and community.

